ALLIED ARTISTS TO DEVELOP "TILL DEATH DO US PART"

Los Angeles, CA - Movie studio Allied Artists Pictures has picked up "Till Death Do Us Part", based on a true story about the life of Fred Wolfson, a former U.S. Intelligence Officer in the Reagan Administration, who becomes a successful and wealthy private investigator. Wolfson was a regular contributor for network television and radio in the fields of personal and corporate security, and had his own weekly television program on the air dedicated to solving cold cases.

Wolfson fell in love with a beautiful surgeon, and the two were soon married. Shortly after the marriage, Wolfson's health began taking a turn for the worse. Wolfson's physician wife began prescribing a multitude of medications, yet his health and mental acuity continued to deteriorate. Wolfson's wife pointed to mental illness, convincing everyone that the world renowned investigator had "lost his marbles." While pretending to be the doting wife, caring for her mentally ill husband, she was actually draining Wolfson's bank accounts and preparing for the ultimate betrayal - - his death!

The attempt to murder Fred Wolfson is about a woman who would stop at nothing to get what she wanted, including murder, and the ability of this former intelligence officer to fight back through a drug induced haze to save his own life.

The project is a high priority for Allied, which hopes to turn it into a psychological thriller based on this amazing story. Wolfson will serve as a technical advisor for this project.
